The Soulard MARDIGRAS'87 BIG PARADE

1547 S. Broadway

Saint Louis loves a parade, but there's none more fun than this one! Spectators join right in with the marchers. Bands play. Kids laugh. Pretty girls smile. Everyone waves and says hello and has a grand time. You can miss all the others in town, but you've got to see this one. The Grand Marshal is John Ulett from KSHE-95.

Mardi Gras Soulard Style

As many things do, the Soulard Mardi Gras really began in a downtown St. Louis bar. It was a bleak January evening in 1980.

"There were five of us sitting there, talking about what a dull winter it was," remembers Hilary Clements, "So we decided to throw a big party — a Mardi Gras party."

That first Mardi Gras party, held at Clements' house on February 9, 1980, featured a Dixieland band, New Orleans style food, and a King's Cake. "We had a parade permit to march to McGurk's while the band played 'When the Saints Come Marchin' In,'" Hilary says. For many of the guests, it was the first time they had been to Soulard. For others, it was a rediscovery — and a surprise.

"That night," said Hilary, "when we opened the door to start the parade, there were 5,000 people on the street in front of my house. The steam from all those warm bodies just rose up like fog!"

The parade had a float, constructed on a 1938 flat-bed truck and a horse-drawn carriage. Swelled by costumed revelers from all over the area, the crowd of party-goers danced in the streets. Mourners in black coattails and top hats carried a coffin down Geyer Street, which had been closed to traffic, while others in the procession waved torches and black umbrellas.

Soon afterward, with the support of Soulard's restaurants and taverns, Clements formed the Soulard Mardi Gras Association. And 1982 was the year of the first big parade. Jack Carney was Grand Marshal, and the University of Missouri Marching Band came with the baton-twirling Golden Girls.

The first Mardi Gras Ball was held the following year at the Boilermakers Union Hall next to McDonald's on Broadway. People came from Louisville, Kentucky, and from Terre Haute, Indiana, to dance at the ball. They came from Springfield, Missouri, and from Jefferson City, Columbia, and Cape Girardeau. They came in taxis and Caddies and Chevies, mink coats and Minnie Mouse masks, tuxedos and Teddy Bear costumes. To the music of Singleton Palmer, they danced, and they dined on catered Cajun cooking.

The parade the next day drew a bigger crowd than ever. This time there were many floats, and the Anheuser-Busch Clydesdales participated, high-stepping to the music of many bands.

"We've had a lot of support from Budweiser," acknowledges Clements, "and from members of our Association, and from a super group of hardworking volunteers. And we've had the backing of many businesses, both in and outside of Soulard. Without all this help, we couldn't put the whole thing together. It's been a real team effort."

Hilary Clements, president of the Soulard Mardi Gras Association, has resided in Soulard for over a decade. One of Hilary's greatest delights has been creating and watching the Mardi Gras grow. Hilary also is the proprietor of a popular night spot, named after himself. The following poem, by Toni Oplt, was written for Hilary's but also encompasses a feeling for Soulard Mardi Gras.

Deep within a forest of brick
Lies a secret hideaway,
Where fountains flow, and people go
To remember how to play

It's a land of fun and fantasy
Where reality stands aside
With fairy tales, and magic trails
That lead where pleasures hide

You can be a princess from China
In a satin-coated bed,
And watch your inner fantasies
Go on above your head,

You can be a prince from India
And climb the castle wall,
Find romance in gardens near the sky
With ladies sleek and tall,

The spiral stair leads to Bourbon Street
And the jazz of New Orleans,
The blond sings the blues,
There's nothing to lose
In the palace of your dreams.

The man who holds the magic wand
That makes your dreams appear is but a Wizard in disguise
From a far-forgotten year,

His head is crowned in silver
And his wisdom-knitted brow
Surveys his work of beauty
Then he quietly takes a bow,

Now the reluctant smiles of children
Cover everybody's face
As they say their last night's goodbye
To the magic of Hilary's place.

LET IT ALL BEGIN..... SOULARD SALOON SAFARI 1986!!!

By Carolyn Radford

Budweiser and the Soulard Mardi Gras Association held the 6th Annual Soulard Saloon Safari on November 13, 1986.

The evening's festivities began at 5 o'clock as patrons, artists, sponsors, entertainers, and the media began to arrive at Soulard's Restaurant, located at 1731 S. 7th.

At 6:00, a special ceremony was held to announce the winner of the Mardi Gras Poster Art Contest. This year's winner, Pete Cosentino, was presented a $500 award by Budweiser. The poster represented the theme of this year's Mardi Gras, "Festival of Bacchus."

Safari goers rushed to purchase their $3.00 boarding badges. Each badge, used to get on the buses, had been numbered.

SOULARD SALOON SAFARI

All 20 participating establishments received a $25 gift certificate donated by Budweiser, redeemable at the Anheuser Busch gift shop. These prizes were given to the lucky people whose number-matched the previously drawn numbers posted in each saloon.

By 7:00, everyone was waiting expectantly for the arrival of the transportation. Three buses departed from different locations at 7:30, thus kicking off the celebration.

Costumed tour guides led Safari goers into each stop. They would announce their arrival by ringing a bell, which also let the people wanting to move on know that a bus was ready to head on to the next saloon.

Safari revelers enjoyed many diverse parts of Soulard. From Music to Food to Drink, they became acquainted with the best that Soulard had to offer.

SOULARD MARDI GRAS PARADE

The Mardi Gras Float Contest

Saturday, February 28, at 4 p.m.

Festival of Bacchus! Images flash before your eyes of bright lights, festive music, costumes, and dancing in the street. The King and Queen of "Festival of Bacchus," Rex and Comos, will reign supreme aboard the 1987 Soulard Mardi Gras Association float. Enthroned in regal splendor, this will be their first public appearance after being crowned at the Mardi Gras Ball.

Budweiser and the Soulard Mardi Gras Association invite parade enthusiasts to join in the fun and enter their floats in a pre-parade competition. The judging begins at 4 p.m., February 28, at the Anheuser-Busch parking lot at 11th and Lynch Streets.

Prizes will be awarded on the basis of creativity and adherence to this year's Mardi Gras theme "Festival of Bacchus." Nearly $2,000 in prize money will be awarded to the best floats. First prize is $1,000; second prize is $500; third prize is $250; and a special $200 prize for the best float sponsored by a non-profit or neighborhood organization.
